

For the use, management and publication of the bibliographic resources made available by Universidad de los Andes, it declared that they are creations protected by the Copyright, in favor of its author or owner, whose use or use, will include the respect for their Patrimonial and Moral Rights established by Law and reserved in the head of their owners.

When consulting or downloading a document from the Repository "SENECA" will be done exclusively for academic purposes and in accordance with fair use.

The consultant accepts that he will NOT make any type of reproduction with the purpose of commercial use, sale or transformation of the information. Must mention the name of the author or owner, publisher and respect for the integrity of the work.

The Universidad de los Andes has an obligation of means and not of result, therefore, the judicial or administrative actions that can be undertake by the authors or owners, will be directed to against those who use such works, outside of the previous conditions; or overcome and violate those adopted technical means of defense.

NORMATIVITY

In accordance with what is established in the current regulations on Intellectual Property in our Country (National Constitution (articles 61 and 71), Civil Code, (article 671), Law 23 of 1982, Law 44 of 1993, Law 599 of 2000 (art. 270, 271,272) and Law 906 of 2004 (article 315) and the general regulations of undergraduate and postgraduate courses of the University, as well as the provisions of the Management, Process, Activity (GPA) B-31 Manual. Universidad de los Andes, may publish in the Institutional Repository SENECA, both in printed and electronic media or any other format known or unknown, the bibliographic resources edited and published by the University.